July 10, 2013

AUSTIN, Texas--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Jul. 10, 2013-- USA Compression Partners, LP (NYSE: USAC) announced today that William G. "Bill" Manias will replace Kevin M. Bourbonnais as Vice President and Chief Operating Officer. Mr. Bourbonnais has given notice of resignation to pursue new opportunities outside the compression industry. To ensure a smooth transition, Mr. Bourbonnais has agreed to remain available to the Company through at least the end of August. Mr. Manias will start in his new role effective July 15.

"I want to personally thank Kevin for his accomplishments since he joined USA Compression over two years ago," said Eric D. Long, President and Chief Executive Officer. "He has made significant contributions to our organization by expanding our service offerings and driving new processes that reflect our service commitment to our customers and employees alike. We wish him success in the future.

"At the same time I am delighted that Bill Manias has accepted the position of Chief Operating Officer. Bill has over 20 years of experience in the midstream space as both a banker and corporate executive working with four publicly traded MLPs to acquire and integrate assets. His expertise in a broad range of strategic, financial and operational matters and his significant experience as a C-suite officer in high growth and larger public companies should benefit USA Compression Partners and its unitholders and help our management team to continue to implement our growth strategy," Long added.

Mr. Manias, a current director of the Company's general partner, will relinquish his position on the Board to allow the Company to add another independent director.

Mr. Manias has served as a director of USA Compression's general partner since February 2013.
